Linklaters in Central and South-Eastern Europe
Our network of offices combines local expertise with global intellectual capital and infrastructure to provide you with the highest standards of quality and consistency wherever you need to do business.

Our market-leading offices with a long history of operations in Warsaw and Moscow give us a physical presence in the key regional hubs with the flexibility to advise across the region, drawing, where appropriate, on additional experts in our wider European offices network. This reach means that we are uniquely placed to meet our clients’ needs on all aspects of cross-border advisory and transactional matters across the region, allowing our clients to benefit from a wealth of experience in countries such as Poland, the Czech Republic, Hungary, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia, Croatia, Serbia and many others.

The team
We have a dedicated CEE desk headed by partners with many years of on the ground experience in the CEE and with specific knowledge of the local markets and an established practice in the region.

Their remit is to co-ordinate and manage the wealth of CEE-related expertise and know-how within the firm to ensure our clients benefit from our expertise.

The team spends a substantial proportion of its time on CEE-related matters and, through regular contact with legal and commercial contacts on the ground, the team stays current as to the latest commercial and legal developments in the region.

Global knowledge, local reach
To ensure that our clients receive the best international and local advice at every stage of the transaction, where we do not have a Linklaters office or official affiliation with a local firm, we maintain close relationships with the local law firms in all of our jurisdictions.
